P., Minister of Education With the evidence before me, of which I have thus endeavoured to present a brief summary, in order that you may more clearly understand the grounds on which I have thus far acted, I should have culpably failed in my duty, as President of University College, if I had yielded to the temptations of an easy and popular course. At the same time, let me here state that, should it be decided to throw open the College lecture-rooms to women, I do not anticipate a large influx of lady students. On the contrary, I view such a movement as a heavy blow to the cause of Higher Education for Women in Ontario. At Owen's College, Manchester, the attempt was made to introduce the system; but it was found that there were ladies earnestly desirous of such facilities for higher study, who shrunk from the incidents inevitable to their intermingling with a large body of male students and there, accordingly - in the centre of the most advanced opinions in reference to education as well as politics, - they have followed the example of the older Universities, and established a separate college for women.
