Ashes are hoisted. 8. Coal is trimmed down into the lower bunkers (not done for practice). At collision drill the closing of all water-tight doors and hatches in the engine rooms, boiler rooms, and their dependencies is done by the engineer s force. All available pumps are connected with the flooded compartments or with the compartments into which the flooded ones drain. At fire quarters the steam pumps are started when the alarm is sounded, and pressure is put on the fire main. Blowers that lead to the vicinity of the fire must be stopped. When getting under way, coming to anchor, mooring, or unmooring, the men of the engineer force not on watch or especially stationed fall in at their quarters and remain there until pipe down or they are dismissed. Sec. 7. General Information.--Inspections.--Messes. Messes.--The captain of the mess, a petty officer, first class, is responsible for order and proper conduct of all men of the mess; also for the detail of mess striker and temporary relief when necessary. His authority can not be questioned, and he has full authority to give orders and directions to the messmen in regard to cleanliness and the manner of serving food. Complaints concerning food should come through the captain of the mess. Sleeping on...
