Whoever is elected President clearly is going to have some significant suggestions in 2009 and 2010. But let us give that next President the benefit of your views, and let us give this committee the benefit of your views. What do you think What should we do UFFETT Mr. B. Well, the Federal tax system has raised close to 20 percent of our GDP fairly consistently. I mean, it has varied a point or two, but since World War II, I am counting all taxes, payroll taxes and so on. In the 20th century, the United States had the greatest economic period that any country has ever seen. The real standard of living improved 7 for 1. So we do not have a broken system in the United States. I am a bull on America over time. We will have recessions from time to time and all of that. Many indus-trial countries, as you know, have had higher tax rates than the U. S. , but we have had, more or less, 20 percent. Everybody who is taxed is unhappy about it, and they would rather have somebody else taxed. As Russell Long said, Dont tax you, dont tax me, tax the fellow behind the tree. We all feel that way. But the country has worked pretty well with the 20-percent allocation to the Federal Government. If you asked me what my druthers would be, if I thought I was designing a perfect...
