It may take a bit longer to learn but pays off in the long run (pun intended). - We include the appropriate strength and coordination drills for each section, as you need a certain level of strength in order to perform each technique correctly. 4. Build the Machine 5. Speed or Distance? This seems to be the big conundrum for runners. I know I used to think that it was an either/or choice. You were either a distance runner or one of the speed guys. I now realize that this is no longer true. With a little planning it is possible to work on both parameters as they each have their...
