It purports to be an extract from an Address delivered by E. D. Mansfield, of Cincinnati, to the students of the Military Academy at West Point. Such paragraphs are admirably adapted to nourish and cherish the war-spirit. While our orators speak thus, war will always be popular, and young wouldbe officers, and their fathers, will long for it as a means of promotion: Of about three hundred members of this Institution who have served in the recent campaigns in Mexico, Twenty-six have either been killed in battle, or died in the campaign with the Army. Some of these died in far distant California, where the waves of the Pacific dash their waters against the rocks of the Northern Andes; some fell on the hard-fought plains of Palo Alto, and Resaca de la Palma; some before the frowning heights of Monterey; others at far-famed Buena Vista; some before the walls of San Juan de Ulloa; and some on the bloody heights of Cerro Gordo; All where their Government called them; All in services which their military duty required; all under the eagles of their country, on fields of victory! We like the Quaker s song far better. I hate that drum s discordant sound, Parading round, and round, and round, To thoughtless youth, it pleasure yields, And lures from cities and from fields, To sell their liberty for charms, Of tawdry lace and glittering arms; And when ambition...
