Nixon: Acclaim and Shame

By Dorrance Bowers

Xlibris Corporation. Paperback. Condition: New. 782 pages. Dimensions: 8.7in. x 6.0in. x 1.8in. Nixon: Acclaim and Shame romps through Richard Nixons family history, early schooling, university education at Whittier College and Duke University Law School, service in the U. S. Navy during World War II, and small town practice of family law to his entry into national politics in 1946. The pace then slows to describe in some detail his ascent the House of Representatives, the U. S. Senate, and the Vice Presidency, to his failed campaign for the Presidency of the United States of America in 1960, on to his first successful campaign for the Presidency in 1968. His organization and re-organizations of the Office of the Presidency and the functioning of the U. S. government are then described at some length. Nixons triumphs in foreign affairs, particularly rapprochement with the Peoples Republic of China and detente with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and his enthusiastic endorsement of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration receive well-deserved praise. His success on the domestic front, particularly school desegregation, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Supplemental Security Income and the Food Stamp program are applauded. These accomplishments are followed by Nixons strivings...
