Excerpt: .once planted, and only half planted at that. will grow and yield plenty of rich and deliciousfruit, on any soil and in any climate, with little, if any, care or attention. There are thousands of trees planted each year by the people of Iowa that are never cultivated, never trimmed, never protected from rabbits, mice or other vermin, never inspected in regard to borers or other dangerous insect or disease, in fact are never seen by the planter until they have been dead for many weeks, or even months, from one of the above causes. Here is the foundation of many a failure. It requires work, good, honest, consistent, hard work and patience combined to make a success in fruit growing. But in what branch or line of business can we succeed without the above essentials? Aside from or along with knowledge, thrift and...
