Not illustrated. 1869 Excerpt: .from that already described in connection with full upper dentures. If the lower plate is constructed from a single lamina of gold, or other metal, it should be somewhat thicker than that used in upper cases, and should also be of finer quality, as the additional thickness of the plate and the peculiar form of the inferior maxilla, renders a greater Fm 75 degree of pliancy necessary in swag ing it to the form of the ridge. The general form of a base for an entire lower denture is exhibited in Fig. 75. The internal border of the plate should usually be doubled, --either by turning the edge over in swaging. or by soldering on a narrow strip of plate or half-round wire. A more perfect adaptation of the plate to the ridge may be obtained by the use of a double instead of a single plate, in which case a thin basement plate, not exbeeding No. 30 of the gauge, should be swaged to the form of the ridge in the first instance, and then a duplicate plate, swaging the two together and uniting them to each other with solder. A plate of the specified thickness may be very readily and accurately conformed to any irregularities in the ridge, and when the two are united, the base will be heavier and stronger than a single lamina of the ordinary thickness. Instead, however, of doubling the entire plate, it will be sulficient, in most cases, to...
