Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Southern Plains of Alberta The classic description of the southern plains of Alberta is to be found in the report by Dr. G. M. Dawson on the region in the vicinity of the Bow and Belly rivers. This report gives a wonderfully true interpretation of the geology of the region; and later and more detailed work has served to confirm in the main the earlier conclusions. In a few cases fuller information derived from sections encountered in bore-holes and from other sources has shown that minor modifications should be made in the correlation. It is the purpose of this report, mainly, to bring the facts recorded by the earlier observers into accord with the results of more recent work and with this purpose in view very full extracts from the old reports are reproduced. The rocks grouped under the name Belly River series were definitely determined to be beneath the Pierre shales. Though in appearance and on account of the fossils they contained they seemed to belong to a series of transition beds at the top of the Cretaceous. The Judith River rocks in Montana had been called Laramie and Foxhill but were supposed by Dawson to be the representatives of the Belly River series. The examination of this series by Stanton and Hatcher for the United States Geological Survey proved that Dawson's contention was correct; but the United States geologists restricted the name Judith River to an upper series, correlated, by tracing surface outcrops northward to Alberta, with the pale and yellow beds of the eastern escarpments of Milk river. Since the series described in Dawson's report as the Belly River has been found to consist of at...
