These two papers reflect not inaptly the two peculiar phases of the individuality of this National Council - one treating with a touch of spiritual passion the glorious absoluteness of the Christian faith, and the other handling with tempered judgment a significant question in ecclesiastical policy. That this Council should have blended these two characteristics in such a notable degree is a very striking fact. It was a notable Congregational assemblage. It manifested the self-consciousness of the denomination at its best. It made it clear that the denomination was determined to realize its high calling to achieve the best things. There was evident a wholesome purpose to get together in the best way to accomplish results for the kingdom of God, regardless of cragged...
