If the work is to have any real stability, it must be the direct outgrowth of the activities of the community who are to dwell and work in the town or suburb when built and must afford satisfaction for their requirements; it must indeed be the expression of their corporate life and their aspirations. It is essential that the Town Planner should regard himself not as a dictator decreeing what form he would like the town to take, but rather as one whose duty it is to find comely expression for common life which he must seek thoroughly to under stand and in every way to provide for. But in a more direct way the work must be co - operaetive. The assistance of the surveyor is needed; he must prepare for us an accurate representation of all existing con ditions, of nature of the site, of the existing portions...
