My fancy is a wing, flying back through the shadowy yester days of many years; my mind is a medley of memories chiming in sweetest harmony with the music of long ago; my eyes are shut, and yet I see faces that will never fade from the picture gallery of my heart; my ears are stopped, but oh how plainly I hear the happy voices of the boys and girls who were the boon companions of my College days. Blessed days, so long gone that the girls of then are the mothers of now, and the boys have come to wear the silvex crowns of middle age. And yet, how near it all seems. Why, the echo of that whirlwind of applause which followed Albert Cox s...
