Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Battle of Buena Vista: From the Southern Quarterly Review, For January, 1851 An elaborate vindication of the administration is at tempted, upon every point that has been brought into con troversy. Discredit or error is not allowed, in any in stance. The country had pronounced judgment, and Mr. Polk and his minister received liberal commendation, for the generally able discharge of their duties. The conduct of the war was in striking contrast with that of 1812, and the credit was awarded where it was merited. But these officers possessed neither omniscience nor ubiquity; their judgments were human, and therefore fallible, and, in the management of a foreign war, waged 1500 to 2000 miles from the Seat of government, it was not only natural, but inevitable, that blunders should be sometimes committed That there were such, every candid mind, however in clined to the existing authorities, must acknowledge. For some, there are valid excuses for others, depending upon political party aims, rather than purely patriotic impulses and objects, there can be none - and the discriminating writer, honestly endeavouring to establish truth, must censure or condemn, as the case requires. At p. 250 - 1, vol. I., Ripley makes a warm defence of the authorities at Washington. At 355, he vindicates the Secretary for issuing an order directly to Gen. Patterson, instead of transmitting it through Taylor, to prepare for an attack on Tampico. He says, the violation of this great principle, can ordinarily lead to nothing but evil.
