INDIAN IRRIGATION: BEING A SHORT DESCRIPTION OF THE SYSTEM OF ARTIFICIAL IRRIGATION AND CANAL NAVIGATION IN INDIA (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Indian Irrigation: Being a Short Description of the System of Artificial Irrigation and Canal Navigation in India Indian Empire - a country possessing every requisite for all natural productions. In the important article of fibrous substances, and the necessity of looking for a substitute for Russian hemp, we have the authority Of Dr. Royle, who, in his interesting and valuable Lecture before the Society of Arts, said, India is a country of such vast extent, so diversified in soil and climate, that we may readily believe it capable of producing every kind of natural produce, and amongst these almost every kind of fibre that is known elsewhere. Some of these fibrous substances are suitable for the construction of rope, specimens of tit-inch rope having been made from them, superior in strength to the best hempen ropes; others are applicable for the manufacture Of coarse and fine cloths, and of paper, and of every article to which fibrous material is applied. Again, in another most important branch of our national manufacture - the cotton trade - India offers an inexhaustible source of supply, if only properly attended to, as well as in the articles of sugar, rice, and many others that it is needless here to mention. Enough has been said to show that, were we dependant upon India alone for our imports, there are few, if any, of the main articles on which our commercial prosperity depends, that could not be Obtained from that brightest jewel in the British crown.
