Excerpt from Exercises in Reading, Writing, Spelling and Arithmetic for Alabama Adult Schools The results which have been achieved in our efforts to eliminate illiteracy are encouraging to those who are familiar with conditions. Numbers of teachers volunteered for service during the summer of 1915 and many schools were taught. The declaration, that those who had grown to manhood and womanhood without securing the elementary tools of learning could not be induced to go to school, has been silenced by many examples of men and women who in the short space of a month have learned to read and write. Inasmuch as it has been declared over and over again by those engaged in the work that the lack of a suitable text upon which to base instruction was a very great handicap, the Commission directed its secretary-treasurer to prepare a textbook for use in the adult schools. This booklet, though official, is not final. No claim is made that the sequence of topics or the subject matter is ideal. In fact, there are many things that run counter to...
