Lindsay Publications, 2000. Condition: New. 48 pages. Here are tips, hints, suggestions and secrets for substituting common inexpensive tubes in early circuits. You also get details on a crystal set that was converted to a grid-leak radio. You'll get details on how various tubes worked in the circuit. Then you'll be shown how to build a simple and cheap power supply from parts you can buy from current electronic catalogs that will power a two or three tube radio. You get pages of tube charts and basing diagrams, a reprint on tube theory from 1931, a bibliography of research papers from the late 20's, and you get a brief demonstration of a one-tube regenerative receiver built with a 6SN7 glass tube from the 1950's (had to scrape the mud off it) using a circuit from 1927. It uses a home-made variable capacitor and the home-made power supply described. Brand new paperback. x.
