Recently adopted children, Willard, Mark, and Gwenny learn the horrific truth about their new home. Woodland Manor is a haunted house that seems to have a mind of its own. If that wasn't bad enough, the kids find out that their new parents are in the middle of a frightening feud between a Witch named Reuben Ezra, and a two hundred year old ghost named Wesley. The young trio set out to discover who is leaving them mysterious notes, the reason behind the Dark Spell that plagues Woodland Manor, and its connection to the countless ghosts living on the third floor. Determined to make contact with one spirit in particular, the children begin to explore the haunted mansion. They find secret passageways and hidden tombs throughout the property but when they accidentally open a sealed room called the Void, it proves to be hazardous to everyone. In order to survive living there, the children must avoid being captured by Wesley's ghoulish henchmen, as they struggle to break the Dark Spell (a curse as old as the Salem Witch Trials). When Willard, Mark and Gwenny realize their parents are in danger of being cursed by the Dark Spell and becoming ghosts themselves, there is one thing the children are determined to prove; family comes first. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
