Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Simulation of various encoders in FPGA Based System for a Layer of Security in Embedded System | This book deals with the simulation of various Encoders through FPGA based system to add security in embedded systems. A buffered based implementation has been proposed which accept a stream of data form input port; store the data into the buffer. The encryption technique operates on the data to generate the intermediate encrypted data stream through simulated hardware. Triangular Encoder deals with string / block as input and produces the string / block as output based on the XOR operation. The XOR operation is done on a fixed size data block, which is taken from the buffer storage. The number of iterations depends on the size of the block of data bits in the data stream. This encoder follows the principle of block cipher technique and symmetric in nature, hence decoding is done following the same procedure. The buffer can store the encrypted data also. This simulation gives the hardware definition/ RTL for buffer based encryption. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 100 pp.
