The halo (diameter was almost perfect; the lower part, however, was slightly obliterated by the thick atmosphere near the horizon. Attached to the upper side was an inverted portion of a similar halo, brilliantly illumined on the concave side, while the lower part shewed traces of a dull red light. Again, 224 above this, and also inverted, about 60 of arc, beautifully coloured with the prismatic tints, was clearly and distinctly visible, the red side innermost. This arc, if it had been produced, would have circled the zenith. The mock lights on each side of the principal halo, were drawn out into long cones of intensely bright light, while the sky inside the halo was of a very dark shade. The most noteworthy feature of the display, was a brilliant patch of pure white light in the north-western sky, at a distance of 90 from the western mock sun, and undoubtedly emanating from it, and which...
