Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.It is Christmas time and nothing makes any sense. Obidiah Water, a penniless, and more importantly dead, person is evicted from Jacksonville, Florida's most notorious housing project, B. D. James Project—a housing complex so bleak, worn, and desolate that many remark, If hell had a cousin, it would certainly be B. D. James. Moreover, Sara Jackson, a four-time public housing tenant of the year, and her nine-month pregnant daughter, LaRhonda Saunders potentially face the same fate for failing to timely pay rent for two months, and having Sheriff's deputies seize illegal contraband from her adult son's (Moses Davis) bedroom. And to top it off, the City's Housing Director, Baron Winston learns that LaRhonda has been harboring an impermissible pet, a sickly pooch, named Lonely Dog. But instead of pressing forward with his usual cold, methodical, and impassionate manner, as he had in almost two thousand previous cases, City eviction attorney, M. B. Hawkins questions the wisdom of trying to secure Sara Jackson's immediate eviction so close to Christmas. Despite such skepticism, and the ensuing negative media reaction, Mayor Russell Davidson, expecting a tough re-election campaign, and intent of destroying the influence of his longtime nemesis, Uncle Almondine Smith (an outspoken community activist and neighbor of Sara's) demands that Hawkins follow the Mayor's newly-implemented zero-tolerance policy, and evict the soon-to-be unemployed, and out of luck, Sara. Against such formidable odds, Sara gains spiritual strength from her parish priest, Father Patrick Hanrahan, while relying on the legal expertise of Blackjack Scott—an attorney more lucky than skillful. Adding to the mix, a local television station transforms an otherwise forgettable eviction into a classic David Goliath struggle with Scrooge-like implications....
