BEARMANOR MEDIA, 2017. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Everyone was In the Mood for Love, when Frances Langford, renowned Big Band singer with a rich contralto voice, rose from performing at hometown parties in Mulberry, Florida to Broadway, Old Time Radio, and movies during Hollywood s Golden Era. Her signature song carried her from turntables to troops in World War Two, and then into the stuff of legends. From the airwaves on Louella Parson s Hollywood Hotel, Rudy VallEe s The Fleischmann s Yeast Hour, and Dick Powell s Campana Serenade (1942-1943), Frances achieved nationwide fame as Don Ameche s insufferable wife, Blanche, on The Bickersons (1946-1951). Her beauty eclipsed her broadcasts, when the movies plucked her from speakers to screens. Her film debut in Every Night at Eight(1935) led to Broadway Melody of 1936 (1935), in which she popularized Broadway Rhythm and You Are My Lucky Star, Born to Dance (1936), and Yankee Doodle Dandy (1942) with James Cagney, in which she sang the rousing Over There. For the first time, her personal interviews with author/publisher Ben Ohmart bring the treasured memories from her past to light. Return with her to the front lines from 1941 into the 1980s with Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna on U.S.O. tours through Europe, North Africa, and the South Pacific, entertaining thousands of G.I.s throughout the world. Frances Langford. More than a voice. More than the G.I.s choice. Illustrated with hundreds of never-before-seen photos from the Frances Langford Collection in Lakeland, Florida.
