It wasn't long ago that Malcolm Richardson walked his path alone, spending his days in an empty mansion, chasing after the wind and contemplating his various mistakes. But through divine intervention, he finds himself on a different journey now. Driven by a newfound spiritual fortitude, he has begun to make peace with members of the large blended family left behind by his divorces. And, even more surprisingly, he finds himself intertwined with his first wife once again, due in part to her newly blossomed faith. As Malcolm continues down the path to redemption, the former agnostic forges a deep connection with church father St. Augustine of Hippo through reading his autobiography, Confessions. But even as God nurtures him and allows him to grow, his family is shaken by a brutal hostage situation in Colombia, where his daughter's boyfriend and three other individuals are being held against their will. A thought-provoking tale of faith, family, love, and redemption, Wings of the Wind brings the Wind trilogy to a striking close, as main character Malcolm's life-altering journey approaches its completion. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
