Interest in Science. --Relations With His ancient Friend, Jefferson. --Observations On The Notes On The State Of Virginia. THROUGHOUT his life, Thomson had an absorbing interest in science. He was elected to membership in the American Philosophical Society on September 22, 1758; was Secretary of the society from 1769 to 1770, and served as one of its councillors from 1781 to 1783. He was active in the deliberations of that body and was frequently appointed on some of its most important committees. On May 20, 1769, he was selected, with Messrs. Ewing and Williamson, to wait on Miss Norris, and request the use of the telescope in her possession, on the occasion of the transit of Venus, June 3d, of that year. The society erected an observatory in the State House yard for the purpose of viewing the transit, and Thomson was...
