Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Annual Address Before the Medical Society of the County of Albany, November 8, 1859 The position that Albany sustains as the Capital of the most important State in the Union its being the seat of a University and a Medical School, and the center of one of the largest Medical Societies in the country, all conspire to require that its laws relating to hygiene and mortuary statistics should be so perfect that in their results they shall bear favorable comparison with those of any city on the continent. These results may be secured through the agency of the members of this Society, either in their individual or corporate capacity. It is not that we are lacking in enterprise to secure these objects, but that our attention has not hitherto been turned in this direction. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This book is a reproduction of an important historical work.
