Wipf Stock Publishers, United Kingdom, 2013. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Description: Communication in Mission and Development identifies, unpacks, and articulates fundamental problems in communication in mission and development as it is being carried out in Africa and the majority world today. New technology, unique in the history of mankind, is throwing up vexing issues, to date barely recognized, in communication practice. This book reconsiders: - Previous work by mission scholars on communication. - Questions regarding materialism in Africa. - Widespread understandings on the nature of human equality. - The impact on communication of the holding of monistic vs. dualistic worldviews.- African and Western approaches to hermeneutics. - The use of European languages for communication in Africa. - Issues related to globalization and development.- And more . . . Underlying differences in philosophical foundations amongst Western as against majority world people influences their respective communication to such an extent that the expectation that both sides simply understand one another because they happen to use the same international language is found to be unrealistic. Communication in Mission and Development concludes that the practice of mission and development will better cope with current realities when the use of local languages is once again given its proper decisive place.Endorsements: Living with the local people and like the local people in a rural village in Kenya has given Jim insight that cannot be bought or taught. I am willing to sit up and listen to what Jim has to say about communication in mission and development. His book will make you dig deep, think hard, and then think again. --Jean Johnson, Co-Director of World Mission Associates Few can fail to notice the massive disconnect between Africa and every attempt to help it from the outside. Harries...
