They have determined, in the spirit of good feeling, to perform an act of respect toward Thomas Jefferson. His name is registered in our book, with those departed worthies Hay and Correa; in honour of whom, with all their virtues and merits, we have decreed no ceremonial. Indeed, occurrences of this solemn kind are so frequent that, if funereal discourses were to be pronounced upon every defunct individual, the time and talent of the living would be too much devoted to the deceased. The wisest course, therefore, seems to be, to let the multitude go and rest in their long homes, without expending upon them unnecessary words. There are, nevertheless, exceptions to the general remark; Persons now and then exist, whose lives and actions afford materials for the instruction and amendment of the human race. To those who have ceased to be inhabitants of this world it is, probably, a matter of no moment whether the biographer shall celebrate them, or not. Still there is a tribute due to their worth. A good name is part, and a most important one too, of a family inheritance. About the PublisherForgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
