Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Child and the Book, Reprinted From the Lost Art of Reading So long as parents and teachers are either too dull or too busy to experiment with mis chief, to be willing to pay for a child s original ity what originality costs, only the most hope less children can be expected to amount to anything. If we fail to see that originality is worth paying for, that the risk involved in a child s not being creative is infinitely more serious than the risk involved in his being creative in the wrong direction, there is little either for us or for our children to hope for, as the years go on, except to grow duller together. We do not like this grov ing duller together very well, perhaps, but we have the feeling at least that we have been educated, and when our children become at last as little interested in the workings of their minds, as parents and teachers are in theirs, we have the feeling that they also have been educated. We are not un willing to admit, in a somewhat useless, kindly, generalising fashion, that vital and beautiful children delight in things, in proportion as they discover them, or are allowed to make them up, but we do not propose in the mean time to have our own children any more vital and beautiful than we can help. In four or five years they discover that a home is a place where the more one thinks of things, the more unhappy he is. In four or five years morethey learn that a school is a place where children are expected not to use their brains while they...
