Excerpt from A Criticism of the Critical Philosophy In this work, which is a criticism of Kants Philosophy, there is no need of giving a detailed account of his life. The biographies of him are now numerous and accessible. He was born at Konigsberg, in Eastern Prussia, toward the Polish border, April 22, 1724. His father, a saddler, was of Scotch descent from some emigrant, who had gone over to Memel, probably from Forfarshire, on the east coast of Scotland, where I have noticed the name Cant (changed in German into Kant), often occurring on tombstones in the parish church-yards, and in old records some of which show that there were Cants engaged in the working of leather. His mother, whom he unfortunately lost at the age of thirteen, was a woman of fervent piety, and the family attended a church where the evangelical faith was preached. At the age of sixteen he entered the university of his native town, and for six years he was employed in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences in going over the branches belonging to the Department of Philosophy. His father having died in 1746 he was thrown on his own resources, and had a hard enough struggle. For a time he was tutor in a private family and from 1755 to 1770 he was Privat-Dozent in the University of Konigsberg, where he taught Logic, Ethics, and Physical Geography, in the last of which he always felt a special interest.
