In response to a congressional request, GAO reviewed the Navys contract decision to repair the San Diego-based U. S. S. Henry B. Wilson (DDG-7) in Portland, Oregon. GAO found that the Navy decided that evaluation criteria other than cost were more important in assessing a potential contractors ability to successfully perform this particular overhaul. The Navy was especially concerned with timely completion of the complex ship overhaul to ensure that fleet operating schedules were maintained. The Navy decided to accept a higher cost proposal because it was technically superior and more realistic cost-wise than other proposals. GAO found nothing to show that the Navy exceeded its available discretions in this matter. The Navy chose a cost-plus-fixed-fee type contract because of the cost uncertainties associated with the procurement. Further, the Navys decision to relocate the scheduled overhaul of four ships, one of which was the Wilson, to the private sector was responsible for the Navys not following its policy of home port repair. Navy officials stated that, because of insufficient shipyard capacity, an average of only 46 percent of overhauls have been...
