You are about to read a story of a man who started out in life with next to nothing and was able to achieve the American dream with notable success in the automobile industry. The automobile was not invented in a single day or by a single inventor. Who exactly invented the automobile is just a matter of opinion. The history of the automobile reflects a worldwide evolution that took place over 130 years. Over time cars have had an enormous impact on our society and changed the way people lived, worked and enjoyed their leisure time. Much has been written about America's love affair with the automobile. My love affair with the automobile was a lasting one. It was easy to fall in love with my first car, savoring the freedom that it would bring to my teen life. The exhilaration of traveling to distant places and discovering what life was about in my youth would be something that I will remember always. My story began when I was born the son of Italian immigrants who achieved citizenship and was the youngest of five siblings by fifteen years. I was raised in a comfortable but modest environment in a small town in southern New Jersey and the only one of five to graduate high school. My father, was a tough old country Italian who taught me something very valuable - the work ethic. I became aware of the moral benefit and importance of hard work and its ability to strengthen one's character. Little did I realize back then as a teenager how far the work ethic would take me going forward. Not having attended college, I recognized early on...
