Excerpt from Charles Shadwell: His Comedy the Fair Quaker of Deal Thesis Presented to the Faculty of Philosophy of the University of Berne Charles Shadwells Fair Quaker of Deal stood in high favour with the London stage of the 18th century. It holds a prominent place among that kind of farcical literature as it developed after the great period of the Restoration Drama had closed. In the Cambridge History of English Literature it is classed with plays of Cibber, Gav, Fielding, and Mrs. Centlivre. The present thesis has for its object to contribute something to the characterisation of the period not only by analysing the Fair Quaker, but also tracing the fate of the comedy and, in particular, that of the Quaker on the stage of the century. A biographical sketch of Charles Shadwell along with a few notes on the rest of his plays are given in an introductory chapter. The writer begs to express his thanks to Professor Muller-Hess, of Berne University, for his valuable suggestions and kind help in the elaboration of this thesis.
