Excerpt from A Summary of Current Program, 10/1/66, and Preliminary Report of Progress for 9/1/65 to 10/1/66 Farm production economics research, as used in this report, deals with many and varied economic problems of agricultural production. The work is concerned with the economics of organization and management of farms, use of capital and labor in agriculture, production and conservation practices, adjustments in production and resource use, farm financial problems of credit and insurance, and appraisal of alternative production policies and programs. A continuing major problem in agriculture is the adjustment of production, both in the aggregate and for major commodities, to market outlets. Achievement of economic balance in agriculture and adequate returns to farmers is likely to continue to be difficult over the next 5 to 10 years as we strive to match the increasing capacity of agriculture to produce with the food and fiber requirements of a larger U. S. Population and expanding outlets for exports and Food for Peace programs. Farms are decreasing in number and increasing in size and degree of specialization. Farm machinery, fertilizers, and other...
