Christine is more than your average author's assistant. She's the unappreciated literary genius who's been secretly ghostwriting Sylvia Stone's worldwide bestsellers for the last five years, and Sylvia wants Christine to keep writing for her forever. Nobody will ever know she exists. But Erik Duke, bestselling horror author, thinks Christine can do better than ghostwriting women's fiction. He's been secretly tutoring her as she works as his assistant, and Christine's talent is flourishing. He sees a big career ahead for Christine. More than that, he sees a partnership between himself and Christine that goes beyond the written word to somewhere much more intimate. The intensity of Erik's obsession with Christine frightens her, yet she can't resist digging into the secrets this broken, tortured man is harboring. What is Erik hiding behind the mask of his emotions? What's in his basement? And why is he so bent on controlling Christine's career?.
