CONSTRAINT PROPAGATION IN FLEXIBLE MANUFACTURING

Springer. Paperback. Condition: New. 258 pages. Dimensions: 9.2in. x 6.1in. x 0.6in. According to Askin and Standridge, the purpose of manufacturing, at least idealistically, is to enrich society through the production of functionally desirable, aesthetically pleasing, environmentally safe, economically affordable, highly reliable, top-quality products AS93. A less pointed and more pragmatic description of manufacturing purposes is to satisfy customers demand (function, reliability, quality of products) while considering managements objectives (minimum of costs). In this context, the organization of manufacturing systems has become an increasingly important factor, stimulated by impressive productivity gains that have been observed in the Japanese industry in the 80s. The boost of efficiency especially became apparent in the automobile industry which experienced a second revolution as has been demonstrated in the famous study of the International Motor Vehicle Program (IMVP) of Womack et al. WJR92. Due to this study and other research initiated by this work, the opinion eventually has gained acceptance that competitive advantages of firms can be considerably influenced by innovations in the organization of manufacturing systems Laz90, AD94. Manufacturing systems cover the following functions AS93: (a) product design and development, (b) process planning, (c) manufacturing operations, (d) facilities layout and (e) production planning. Product design and development is responsible for analyzing the information provided by marketing and sales regarding customers demands. Its task is to transform this information into the description of products that both satisfy the customers needs and can be efficiently manufactured. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg, OR, La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
