

Dog in a Box: The Story of Free vs. Crated Champ (Paperback)

By Ray Lincoln, Emma Lincoln

Awesome Book Publishing, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The hour by hour story of what a dog really does when he is home alone how he thinks, feels and changes spending his day free in his home vs. those same hours locked in a crate. Experience one life-changing day from the perspective of easy-to-love Champ, an 8 month old German shepherd who is sometimes silly, sometimes regal, but always goodhearted and always a hero to seven year old Aiden and six year old Cody. Young Champ may not look quite like a superhero in his roles of: dancer on the living room stage, birdwatcher, Mom s stress therapist, Dad s business advisor, self-appointed chairman of the neighborhood watch and caretaker-in-training for his family, yet readers will share each moment of his unclouded joy. They will also experience the darker side of hour by hour confinement seen from the dog s perspective in this first-of-its-kind book. These days, many authorities in the dog world pressure families like Champ s to confine their dogs in crates (or wire cages) for much of each day and night. But Dog in a Box...
