Not illustrated. 1898 Excerpt: .a tew queslions that I feel sure would be a benefit to all who are interested in this word-grinding craft. First, would you advise the use of a few appropriate cuts, we will say about three in an ad of four columns half? and don t you think cuts are liable to make an ad more pretty than forcible? Next. wouM you advise any one to continually use about the same display and same style of type until at last your ad would be recognized bv the people without seeing your name? Don t you think it s liable to lose its freshness and at last get stale in the eyes of the public? Next, do you think it policy to always have a heading? Doesn t it seem to you as though we all thought it necessary to first preach a little sermon before getting down to our items? How many people except competitors do you think ever read a heading? Don t you think it advisable to mix in such sentences as you would use in a heading among your items? Wouldn t thev then stand more show of being read? Hardly daring to hope for such good luck as to hear your opinion on these questions, I remain, after thanking you.in for favors already shown, respectfully yours, Frank Stein. 240 Eighth St., Oshkosh, Wis. I certainly helieve in the use of cuts in retail ads if they are good cuts and if they...
