Excerpt from Oration on the National Independence, Richmond, July 4, 1840: Before the Franklin Society at the City-Hall Feeling sensibly the honor conferred upon me, by the Society which I have the pleasure to address, I, however, feel more deeply the responsibility of my present station, in attempting to delineate those events, in the Capital of Virginia, which are as familiar as household words; yet advancing to my duty with that deference to public opinion, which should belong to every citizen, I hope that no portion of my discourse will be viewed by this brilliant assembly with a partial glance; but, that all present will follow me along the sombre path of the Revolution, and view with me, - as through the bright vista of our fate, - the halo of the Constitution, the final glory of the great battle, fought for the freedom of the Western World! The celebration of the Nation s Birth, claims the exercise of a power, which no other day in the four seasons can boast of: - a power granted by Liberty from her curule chair of Independence, - the power to crush all party feeling, and fix the Patriot s eye upon the past history of his Country s Glory! Therefore, Fellow-Citizens, are we assembled, in obedience to the Nation s custom, to offer the tribute of gratitude to the memory of the Fathers and Heroes of that war, wherein, were achieved the undying honors of the Republic!
