

We Must Wake Up: Tome 1: A Notice to the Congolese Nation: The Time of Change Has Come (Paperback)

By Basona Lokondo

MoshPit Publishing, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . The book is about setting the fact right about issues that Black people just speak of in half words; it is about telling abruptly Africans and their diasporas about the dangerousity of capitalism, Westerners and Leucoderm race over the welfare of the humanity in general, and that of Melanoderm race in particular. We have to remind our people how much our passivity coupled with docility and naivety are lethal to us as a collectivity of people. It has a focus on the Democratic Republic of Congo and its people, because, it is where I was born and lived; and also where the work has to be first done because of its strategic location, spiritual importance and resources to impact in an optimal and maximal way the whole Africa and African diasporas. It put an over-emphasis on the necessity of Negro-Africans without spatial, national and ethnic considerations to come to understand that the capitalism is not in our way of life, and that Leucoderm people in general are not our brothers or friends, but, predators programmed to create havoc on all externalities,...
