Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The American Oxonian, Vol. 3: The Official Magazine of the Alumni Association of American Rhodes Scholars The first thing for the American student to remember is that at Oxford he is not so much choosing a course as preparing for certain examinations. From the first University examination, Responsions (corresponding to our examination for entrance), the American student is exempt when he has passed the qualifying examination necessary for the appointment. He is also exempt from the college matriculation examinations. The second University examination is Moderations, called in the Handbook the First Public Examination, and known universally among undergraduates as Mods. Rhodes Scholars who Obtain Senior Standing (which they are likely to get if they have taken an a.m. In an American university of the first class) are exempt from this; those who Obtain Junior Standing must take it. Moderations is an intermediate examination preceding entrance upon the work of a Final Honor School. There are two varieties of Moderations, Pass and Honor, and most American Rhodes Scholars will find it advisable to take the former. Honor Moderations requires two years Of detailed classical study and would leave a Rhodes Scholar without time enough to complete the work of an Honor School. Pass Moderations is not a very difficult examination (the specific books required will be found listed in the Handbook), and the Rhodes Scholar who wishes to get the most out of his time at Oxford will begin work on it the summer before he enters and take it at the end of his first term, thus leaving nearly his entire three years for more advanced work.
