Excerpt from Britain s Part in Lend-Lease and Mutual Aid Mutual Aid is a vast system for the pooling of the resources of all the United Nations, whereby each nation contributes on lend-lease terms to the common pool. Starting in 1941, lend-lease gave help to Britain from the vast industrial resources of the United States, at a time when Britain was standing almost alone against the Axis. While the United States was still at peace, the ow was overwhelmingly in one direction. But after Pearl Harbor, the nature of lend-lease slowly changed. Other nations, including Britain, instituted. Their own forms of lend-lease, and began supplying goods and services to one another. In this way, lend-lease developed into Mutual Aid - the pooling of the resources of all the United Nations. The British people, well aware of the part played by American lend-lease in the hard days of 1941, have long been anxious to know what lend-lease aid Britain in her turn is giving to the United States and other members of the United Nations. On November 11, 1943, the British Government,...
