Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Stage Year Book Between the sister arts of painting and acting there has always been warm affection, and the reverence paid to the memory of great actors and actresses of the past owes not a little to the rendering which masters of the brush have given of them in their favourite parts. To the stage of to-day our painters are rendering similar service, as will soon be evident to anyone who takes the trouble to turn over the pages of the Royal Academy and other exhibition catalogues in recent years. On the Stage and in the Studio. The representation of an actor as he appears on the stage in view of his audience is no easy task even for the most skilful painter. The conditions as to light on the stage, for example, are so different from those of the studio. If the picture is painted entirely in the studio the actor finds it difficult to assume and the artist to portray the pose and action of the stage, with all the spontaneity and fire of his acting. The Hon. John Collier, who has painted some of the most successful portraits of actors in character at the present day, combines the realism of the stage with the convenience of the studio in the production of such portraits as those of Mr. Beerbohm Tree. Mrs. Kendal, and Miss Ellen Terry in The Merry Wives of Windsor, Mr. Lewis Waller in Monsieur Beaucair, and Miss Julia Neilson in The Dancing Girl. From the wings he would make studies of actor and actress in their respective parts, finally choosing (in consultation with his subject) the particular moment of the play at...
