When my father asked him if hew as wounded, he replied yes! but never mind it boys, fight on. Soon after, the Lieutenant received a ball through the body, which terminated his existence in this world; the Ensign left the ground; each man then fought for himself: When lo! my father espied a Redcoat standing behind an apple tree, not far off, who fired twice, and in the act of loading again, while my father pulled trigger and burned primer twice, and while in the act of stripping a leaf to pick the touchhole, one of his comrades, an Irishman, came up and exclaimed, What s the matter Hines, what s the matter? He replied, Don t you see that Redcoat behind that apple tree? These words were hardly spoken, when up went his piece, which also burned primer, when the Redcoat quickly decamped. By this time the two main armies came together, and a bloody battle ensued. He was in other battles and skirmishes during the war, and continued to serve the American cause in various ways during the Revolution. His father s family at the time consisted of John (himself), Daniel, Henry, Rudolph, Philip, and a sister, Christiana. Three of his brothers, namely, were also in the service of the Revolutionary War. His sister, Elizabeth Christina, was married to Jacob Ourand, and had.many children; his brother Philip was an invalid; three of the five brothers were married and had children--the following...
