It would be a misapplication of our funds to devote them to adding one or two more simple workshops to the thousands on thousands already in existence, and to do at the University what must necessarily be done better elsewhere. The great want of the country in this Department is for Master Mechanics thoroughly instructed in the most approved sci. ence and general practice of the Mechanic Arts. The time generally wasted by uninstructed or half instructed Master Mechanics would more than suffice to endow splendid institutions for this sort of instruction. Closely connected, therefore, with the lecture rooms where the scientific side of the Department is presented, will be provided rooms for the designing and modelling of machinery, and workshops fitted with engines and machinery for working in wood and metals, where the practical side will be conducted. In them students will practice under the eye of the Director of the Shops, and it is hoped that some of them while thus fitting themselves for usefulness by perfecting themselves in the best methods, by designing machinery and by working upon models, apparatus, c., may also do something toward their own support. It will easily be understood that this Department must be at first largely of an experimental character. The course of study in this Department will extend over four years, as follows: First Year. First Term.--Algebra completed, French, Eng. Lang., Lit. and Vocal Culture, Linear Draughting....
