Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Outdoor Life in Europe: Or Sketches of Seven Summers Abroad All ashore for Queenstown! was a welcome call after nine days at sea. We had had a large and pleasant company, and the enjoyment of abundant comforts. Two weeks were now to be given to the beautiful Emerald Isle. Nothing more delicious could be desired than the dawn of that dewy June morning we landed. All was beauty and freshness. Jocund day stood tiptoe on the misty mountain top. The solid earth under our feet seemed good to tread upon, and the green fields and blue heavens wore a loveliness we could not describe. Hungry as we were, some of the party at once started to see the sun rise from the heights of Queenstown and to enjoy a landscape which an Eastern traveler compares to the Bosphorus. They came back loaded with evergreen, ivy leaves, daisies and buttercups. After an ordinary breakfast, at an extraordinary price, at The European, we rode by rail to Cork, a short but charming trip along the winding Lee, through meadows where sheep and oxen fed, by humble, whitewashed cottages and lordly castles, quaint villages and ancient ruins, until we reached The City of Cork. An Irish nobleman once asked Foote, at whose table wine flowed freely, if he had been to see Cork. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
