Excerpt from Harvard School of Public Health, 1988-1989: Official Register of Harvard University An applicant with a bachelor s degree is normally considered for admission to a two-year program. However, a few programs, such as those in Physical Sciences and Engineering (in the Department of Environmental Science and Physiology), consider certain applicants with bachelor s degrees for a one-year program. These applicants must have had adequate training in science and mathematics and normally at least two years of relevant professional experience in the field of specialization. A year or more of appropriate graduate work occasionally enables a student to fulfill the requirements of certain two-year programs in one or one-and-a-half years. Requirements for the Degree Students enrolled in a one-year program must successfully complete at least 40 credit units, and those in a two-year program, 80 credit units. Unless they can demonstrate equivalent preparation. Candidates for the SM degree must fulfill basic requirements in biostatistics and epidemiology, as follows.
