Peeps Publishing, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . If you forget where you come from, where else are you going to go? Social Media. Two little words that changed the way businesses do business, people connect, families stay in touch, enemies fight, religion is practiced, politics are practiced, education is taught and people heal. Through status updates we share, laugh, cry, look for support, express frustration, demonstrate, occupy space, rant, disagree and agree. A new world has been created in an intangible place called the World Wide Web. Thoughts and frustrations, once hidden away under lock and key in diaries and journals, are now on public display. There was a time we would have been devastated if our deepest most heartfelt feelings were ever revealed to anyone let alone voluntarily shared. Today times have changed. We post on social media sites hoping for reactions from our friends, to help each other, to be heard, to be accepted and to make a difference. In this book author and intuitive, Lisa J. Smith shares with her readers a collection of her random, yet purposeful pondering thoughts, messages and feelings all over the course of 36 months. Each post captured a moment in time. She thought she was posting motivational tidbits of wisdom for her friends, clients, callers and listeners. Little did she know the posts she had been posting were really for her. In 2008, Lisa's life changed. Everything she once knew and loved was different. An emotional and painful divorce, a daughter moving away to college, the loss of several beloved friendships, leaving her home, going out on her own for the first time in over 20 years and raising an Autistic teenager. At the same time, she...
