Bledsoe, Esq., Of Wake; Delivered in the Senate of North Carolina, on the 12th January, 1859, on the Bill to Alter the Constitution So as to Enable the General Assembly to Equalize Taxation I regard this restriction in the amended constitution, and the inequality and injustice of the revenue laws of North-Carolina which are the result of that restriction, as incompatible with the great principle of democratic republican equality, upon which the constitution was framed and the government established. If that restriction, which was an innovation upon the constitution of our fathers, is incompatible with the principles upon which the government was established, that alone, if there were no other, furnishes a sufficient reason for the passage of this bill. In establishing the position which I have assumed, it is proper that I should advert to the circumstances under which the constitution was framed and the government established, in order to a clear understanding of the objects designed to be accomplished by those who originated and organized it....
