Crossway Books. Hardback. Condition: new. BRAND NEW, ESV Pew and Worship Bible, Large Print, Crossway Bibles, "Who am I? Why am I here? What is life all about?" As a teenager, David found himself wrestling with these questions. Growing up as one of twelve children, he struggled to find his own identity and discover his place in the world. He wasn't very good at school. He couldn't imagine himself in any particular career. Maybe he would find direction serving in the military, as his father had done. Only seventeen, David convinced his parents to let him enlist in October 1958. The Army taught David some useful skills, gave him discipline and a sense of accomplishment--even a taste of success. He quickly rose through the ranks to become Buck Sergeant. But to David's dismay, there was still an emptiness deep inside. Something was missing. David began experimenting with behaviors he associated with maturity and manhood: living hard--and partying even harder. He spent all of his free time in bars and dance clubs. "It was so destructive," he recalls. "I was literally wasting my life away." For a while he managed to keep out of any serious trouble, but hard living began to take its toll. He realized he was losing control. "Many times I'd go to sleep at night not knowing how I got back to the barracks, not knowing when I went to bed. I hated waking up in the morning fearful, not knowing what I might have done or failed to do. I felt so discouraged, so disappointed in myself. I couldn't stand who I was. I wanted to give up on life." Just when it seemed he'd hit rock bottom, David was asked to escort a company of soldiers to a chapel service on base. Something in the...
