Divinity and the Cosmos. Professor William James, of Harvard University, to Prof. Edwin R.A. Seligman, of Columbia College. There is a spiritedness about his whole attempt, a classic directness and simplicity in the style of most of it, and a bold grandeur in his whole outlook, that give it a very high aesthetic quality, reminding me forcibly of Spinoza himself, opposed as are many of Silberstein s views to those of his great fore runner. In his second letter to Prof. Seligman: There is really a grand style about his writing; quite a native kinship to Spinoza. In a letter to me Prof. James states: Your style is...
