Excerpt from Lincoln the Christian: An Address Delivered at the Lincoln Day Service, February 12, 1910, in Third Church of Christ, Scientist, of Chicago Having come upon the scene of earth's activities since the close of the Civil War, I am, as a matter of course, devoid of personal reminiscences of the meek but mighty man whose life work we are commemorating at this service. Silver haired men and women there are in this city - and, for aught, I know, in this audience - the storehouses of whose memory are filled with rich recollections of the fifties and early sixties in Illinois. Some of these, no doubt, felt the cordial hand clasp and enjoyed the genial smile of Abraham Lincoln while he was yet known only as a rising lawyer of the Prairie State. Some there may be still among us who can recall the grim visage and almost grotesque figure of the Martyr President, as he went sadly about the national capital, bearing the unspeakable burden of care and responsibility which he assumed on becoming Chief Executive. There are some venerable patriots still in our midst who fought for the preservation of the Union under Lincoln's direction; for, by virtue of the presidential office, he was commander-in-chief of the Armies and Navies of the United States. But it is not for me to open these treasure houses of memory, and, perhaps, it is better so. For while the personal appearance, habits, manner of dress, the tone of voice, may engage the attention and interest us at the moment of personal contact, these merely human attributes do not survive the wreck of time. It is not, therefore, how a man...
